Post-Anaesthetic Homecare for Rabbits & Guinea Pigs

Your pet has recently undergone sedation or anaesthetic.

Complications:

Please notify the practice at once if any of the following occur:

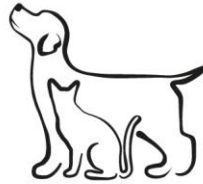

- Diarrhoea
- Refusal to eat or drink. It is very important that rabbits and Guinea pigs continue to eat to prevent gut stasis. A life-threatening emergency where the gut stops moving.
- Signs of severe pain (mild pain and discomfort are normal for the first few days after surgery)
- If your pet acts off or seems "not right" in any other way

By following the guidelines below, you will be able to dramatically speed up your pet's Recovery.

- Offer your pet food and water immediately when you arrive home. We will provide liquid recovery food in your home care package.
- Do not give any over-the-counter pain relievers such as paracetamol or ibuprofen as these can be poisonous to pets. We will prescribe non-steroidal pain relief medication for the following 3-5 days after surgery which should keep your pet comfortable during their recovery.

Post-Operative Telephone Call - A staff member will call you a few days after the procedure to check on your pet. Do not be alarmed. This is a routine call to find out how your pet is progressing after their surgery.
